JOINT STATEHOOD.

Arizona and New Mexico Would Make an Empire State.

REASONS WHY THEY SHOULD BE UNITED

Editora Citier

There is a great deal being ventilated during these hot days about state hood of New Mexico and Arizona, separately and jointly, and it is the general consensus of opinion that joint statebood would be preferable to nothing at all, although separate statehood would be more satisfactory to both territories, and as a last resort, rather than be still left on the ragged edge of the union to he buffeted and kicked around like a poor boy at a frolic, it would be better to join forces in solid plantany and march to victory. This movement may not be popular with small fry politicians and those ambitions aspirants for office whose private. and public records will not bear ventilating before an honest public, but it will be approved and advocated by all honest unprejudiced political aspir ance, and all other good citizens who have the interest of the territory at beart. Laving aside all prejudice, and assising the facts square in the face, it would be a grand triumph for both territories. Instead of two helpiess. fe-life dependencies subject to all kinds of selfish jobberies, we would have one grand state, an empire rivaling the great state of Texas itself, with our own chosen representatives and senators, whose tenure of office would depend upon the faithful performance. of the duties which they were elected to fill: able congressmen who would have the right and whose duty it would be to stand upon the floor of congress all matters pertaining to the great state of Monteguma, Arizona or New Mexico, as the case may he. Why, in less than two years this state would he hailed all over the union as the great state of Montexuma or empire of the west, just as Texas is now talked of as the empire state of the south. or the great state of Texas. Then, you say, we can divide if we so stipulate, at some future time, but allow me to say that you will never want to divide it. They could not today get a corporal's guard in Texas who would agree to reduce its territory by one foot, and it would be the same way in this state. The people would be proud of their state, and the west would be proud of it, and the whole nation would be proud of it. The joint com- From the Bee bination would bound into such prominence and give such an immense impetus to trade, progress and prosperishe would easily maintain a most enstates of the union. Give us one great state or two small ones, either is far ritory a subservient, sycophant beggar for small tavors from the general of justice and right, entitled to as much consideration as any state in the union, and this we should be in a position to demand. Our delegates from Arizona and New Mexico are as able men as the average congressman. and are both intelligent advocates of statehood. One is a republican, the other a democrat: these gentlemen are willing to take their chances before the electors of their respective territories; they understand the difference between a great self governed, independent state, and a cringing, crawling, dependent territory. When our representatives do screw up their courage to ask the self constituted nabobs of the capital for any consideration for the benefit of their constituents, they are usually met with the interrogation "Who in the -- are you" "Honored sir, I am the delegate from New Mex-"Oh, yes; I see, I see; you are the same tramp that has been knocking at my door for the last half cen-Have we not often told you to get out; that we do not want you' "Oh, yes, noble sir, but our people still think that they have some rights which the government, great as it is. should respect. We enlisted in the war for the union, and gave our full quota of blood to save the nation. We responded to your call in the late Spanish war, and if any of your great states have furnished any better, braver, more intelligent fighters for the honor and glory of the flag, please, kind sir, point out the time and place."

But the autocrat, not being able to answer, gives the delegate a cold potato and tells him to go-to go way back and sit down. "Some day, in the far distant future, when you have spent $300,000,000 in storage reser voirs, and have your fertile plains under irrigation, and in a high state of Clouderoft cultivation, then, perhaps, we may let you in, but don't bother us any more; statebood: it's a corker, and should make that brilliant editor governor." Like all other feeble opponents of seif government, the Headlight, for want of any plausible argument against statebood, must fall back on that old-time, worn fling at our native population. And right here, I arise to say, that I have been in New Mexico over twenty years, and it has been my n's asure to know many of the leading Mexicans in this territory, and candor compels me to say that for intelligence, integrity and good citizenship, they compare most favorably with our And then, all this hue and cry about the native element banding together, taking all the offices, and sendbut the country to the demnition bowwows, is the merest rot. These peopie are as much divided, politically, as we are, and fight each other in a pe litical campaign just as hard as we do: note the result of our recent elections Larazola, one of the most popular and brightest young Mer cans in the territory; and Bernard Rodey, an American, and an Irish-American at that beat him by an overwhelming majority: and two years later my esteemed friend, Hon. H. B. Fergusson, shared the same fate. This does not bear out the idea that our native citizens will club together regardless of political principles, and swallow the territory, body and soul. Take the Oteros. Manzanares, Chaves, Lunas, Larazolas and scores of others whom I could name among preminent Mexicans, and will stand them up in a row against an equal number of their paler faced brethren, who oppose statehood, on any such flimsy pretexts, and I venture to predict that the comparison will not be odious.

Give us joint statehood-a great state, a great people. It will insure great progress, honor and respect and great wealth

Capital will flow in for investments and build up our country so rapidly that many of our pioneers will live to see the magic transformation.

CONTRACTOR AND INVENTOR.

Mr. Wismyer, of the Santa Fe, has a Gold Machine.

Yesterday a machine was tested and proved a success which promises a for tune to its inventor and the members or the company which has been build ing it, says the Emporia Gazette. The inventor is Conductor Henry Wismyer Several other railroad men are interested in the machine and were pres ent at the test which was made down on Second avenue and Commercial street in a carpenter shop.

Mr. Wismyer has been working or the machine several years. Some time ago he got it so it would work but now he has perfected nearly every detail and has applied for a patent. The test was made yesterday on the poorest quality of pay dir! In the pan this dirt hardly showed a particle of color and in the best gold separating machine hitherto known, this yielded only 42 cents to the cubic yard. The machine itsen looks something like a half sized threshing machine only somewhat more complicated.

Mr. Wismyer refuses to discuss the principle on which the machine extracted the gold until he receives a patent on it.

FREIGHT CAR TOURISTS

Claim They Subsidized Brakemen and Got Worsted.

Ten natives rode from Alamogordo n a freight car recently and were caught by the police like rats in a trap, as the doors were locked and they could not emerge when their destination was reached, says the El Paso News.

There were five men, three women and two children in the party. They claimed that they had given a brakeman $7 in payment for the ride and he locked them in a car partially loaded with merchandise, but when the train arrived at El Paso the tourists found themselves unable to get out. The car was also without ventilation and they were almost suffocated. In their desperation they put forth every effort to open the door, and in doing so attracted the attention of the trainmen, who notified the police.

The men in the party were docketed as suspicious characters. They gave Moriarty and with pleasant weather their names as Antonio Telles, Ursolo Jacques, Hicente Hernandez, Louis Caron and Antonio Gonzales, and station south the track has been laid claimed to be coming home after doing track work in New Mexico. They had a camp outfit and cooking utensils with them, and were evidently prepared to cook inside the car in which Harris track laying machine will be they traveled.
